

Cliff's story...

Cliff started as a volunteer with Ignite, assisting in our basic IT classes. After 12 months in this role and completing his Preparing to Teach in the Lifelong Learning Sector qualification, he started to study for his Diploma to Teach in the Lifelong Learning Sector, specialising in IT delivery. To gain the relevant teaching hours for this course he took on a volunteer role as sole facilitator for the basic IT course and also delivered employability courses for our Work Programme customers.

We were so impressed with the quality of Cliff's delivery, his enthusiasm and dedication to our learners that when a position became available, Cliff applied for it and was successful in gaining a paid position with us.

That was nearly two years ago – Cliff still works in our Learning and Work team, and during these two years has gone from strength to strength. He has had the opportunity to work on a variety of different programmes, broadening his horizons and experience even more.